FAME BACK

In each episode, eight former, forgotten pop-stars get a second chance at fame. They will each perform one song on the stage and they will vote each other.

The jury of the show consists of two music experts; one performing the role of the angel/good cop and the other the role of the devil/bad cop. After each performance, the “kind” jury member comments on contestant’s performance in a good way and the tough jury member will criticise the contestant sharply. They play the mentor roles in the show. After the jury comments, the other contestants vote.

The points given are added to each contestant’s position to reach the full ranking of points. The voting of each contestant by their fellow contestants is an original and unique element of Bring Your Fame Back.

The kind jury has the right to give 5 additional points to good performances that she likes while the tough jury may deduct 5 points from the performances that he doesn’t like.

At the end of each episode, four contestants who got the lowest number of votes are presented to the studio audience who will save one of them. Then the kind jury member will save another one. Finally, the tough jury member eliminates one of the remaining two contestants at the end of the show. The seven contestants continue the following week and a new contestant joins them.

Each episode, one contestant with the highest number of votes wins a weekly cash prize.

Eight powerful voices who manage to stay in the fierce competition participate to the big finale.

The contestant who gains the highest points becomes the winner of the big finale.

TV viewers do the voting of the live grand finale. The winner gets the chance to regain his or her lost fame and wins big cash prize.

The set design is built like a colosseum and behind each contestant the fan club of the artist is seated with cheering boards in their hands.
