“Love, Marriage, Divorce” tells the story of three women whose lives are thrown into turmoil by marital strife, taking them on a journey of suffering, passion and transformation. While being very different ages and characters, they all have adulterous husbands and share experiences of deception, vengeance and forgiveness as their worlds are turned upside down.

All three work at the same company, where Gaye is the ambitious producer of a radio program. In her 40s, she is a perfectionist and controlling character, always well-groomed and smiling. But her flawless life is about to collapse. Her handsome, manipulative husband Çınar has a lover and long-held secrets are set to shatter their marriage.

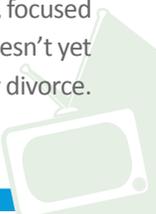

The youngest of the three, Naz, is the radio show host and a self-confident, outspoken woman. Like a fire, she gathers people to her light and warmth, enchanting them. For Naz, in her 30s, peace cannot be achieved without war, love cannot be achieved without struggle, and power cannot be achieved without courage.

Naz and her lawyer husband Timuçin have decided not to have children. She thinks she is in a position to give advice to Gaye and Guner, until she finds out what Timuçin has been up to. His lover, whom he meets at the gym, is pregnant. She does not want to break up Timuçin’s marriage, but he insists on being with her, leading to chaos in all their lives.

The third of the women is the radio show’s talented writer Güner. In her 50s, she has a quiet strength and keeps all her feelings inside. She is a devoted mother and wife, focused on family responsibilities while her husband pursues an academic career. She doesn’t yet realize that the illness she has been struggling with for years will be an excuse for divorce.

Her husband Altan is the head of his university's acting department but is going through a midlife crisis. As his passion for Güner fades, his heart starts beating again with the famous actress Gonca. He is ready to burn and destroy everything for love, unaware that he will regret his foolhardiness and that Güner will find true love after their divorce.

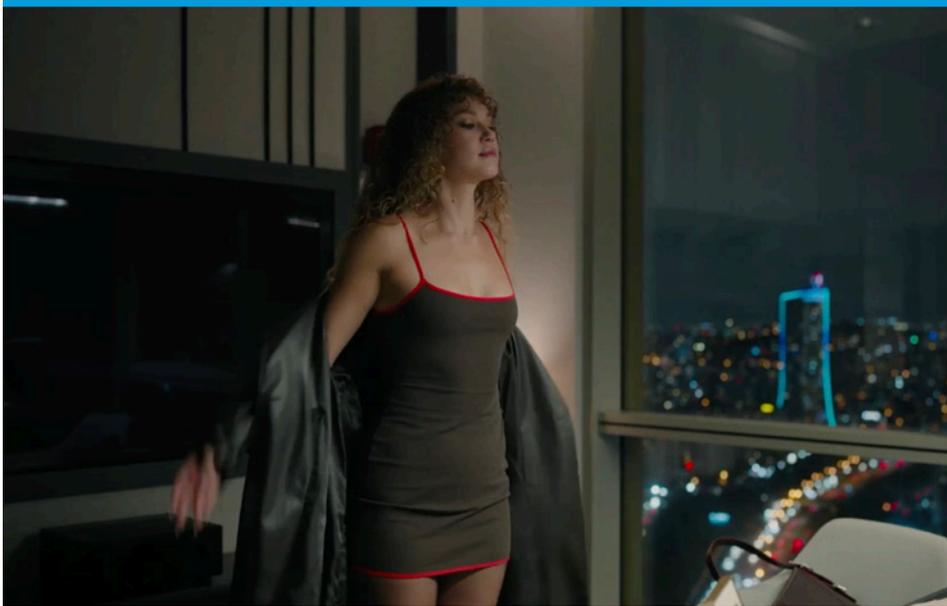

All three women's expectations about life are shattered. Naz thought her 30s promised an exciting future, Gaye felt she had everything under control in her 40s and Güner hoped her 50s would bring resolution and peace. Instead, they start a journey of discovery, facing challenges that force them to confront their roles and expectations.

Failing marriages unite three contrasting women in "Love, Marriage, Divorce", teaching them to support each other as their comfortable home lives crumble beneath them. Despite the chaos that ensues from their husbands' betrayals, they discover new truths about themselves and each other, forming a bond that reinvigorates their spirits and transforms their lives.
