All four dinner dates take place in the man's home. He will shop and cook a four course dinner for the lady. If he's married, his wife will help him with the preparations, and remove all evidence from the home of a married couple. If he's single, a friend will help him prepare and advise him on his strategy. As the dinner and flirting starts, the friend or wife will watch his progress with the lady, and advise him on how to improve his technique. The bachelorette will give her opinion to camera at the end of each date.

On the fourth day, the bachelorette will become the hostess for the four men in an expensive restaurant with a professional chef. During the course of the dinner, she will eliminate them one by one until she is left with her choice. If she chooses the single man, they leave on an all expenses paid trip together with plenty of spending money. If not, the married man will take the prize. The bachelorette gets to meet all of the wives at the end of the show and they discuss who flirted the best.
